children to attend a party at his home this afternoon. Master Albert Phillips, the son of Mrs. Albert Charles Phillips of Seattle, Wash., is a guest of honor.

The seventeenth annual banquet of Western Sororists was held Friday night in the dining hall of the Methodist building.

The decorations were little green baskets of red roses and metal leaves set at intervals down the center of the tables, and stretched from one basket to the next were strands of red satin ribbon. Candelabra set with red candles lighted the tables. The place cards were adorned with tiny American flags.

The members of the club were asked to appear at the party wearing costumes of the fashion of the immediate ante-bellum days, and a number of the women wore the old time tight bodices and full, flaring skirts (not so far off from the present day style), and their hair decorously parted and drawn over the ears. Mrs. F. W. Watson, president of the club, was toastmistress. Her gown of the old time tight bodice and full, flaring skirts, which is in the height of fashion, was quaintly suggestive of the Victorian period of dress. Her introductions were particularly clever.

The principal address of the evening was made by Governor Arthur Capper, his subject being "Abraham Lincoln," and there was an ample dish of nonsense served on the side by the members of the club.

Governor Capper spoke of the peculiarity of a political situation which brought to the head of the nation an awkward country lawyer, who had had less than ordinary advantages and poor and obscure antecedents, while such men as Seward and Douglas were defeated. It was Lincoln's calm and judicial mind, his charity and largeness of view, his Godlike patience, and his faith in the ultimate good judgment of the people that made him pre-eminently fit for his task.

"His work was concerned, not only with keeping the American republic undivided and freeing the black man, but also the preservation of government by the people. Democracy was on trial for its life."

"The time will never come when there will be no more problems to solve. The time of danger for any state is not its pioneer time and its day of poverty, but when it is threatened with a rich state that is threatened with the dangers that attend luxury and the love of money. We are not to think that because our state has grown rich that our poverty has decreased. It has never been and never will be. The greatest problems of the state are the problems of the rich and the poor. The luxury that is existing side by side. Nevertheless, there is no evil that does not have a remedy, and the conscience of the people was never so awake as it is now. There has never been devised a plan of government or social life that would make for the betterment of all classes that was not founded on the principles of brotherhood and faith in each other—the principles of Lincoln believed in."

Mr. Capper spoke of Henry Ford's action in turning back millions to the hands of his workman, and expressed his belief that such an act was of immensely greater benefit than the endowment of colleges or libraries.

The club liked Governor Capper's speech and voted to make him an honorary member.

Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter was called upon by the name of Milner Hill to read the minutes of the previous meeting. Her toast was a burlesque of the work of the secretary, and at its close various members of the club rose to offer objections, because their names were not mentioned in the minutes. Other members thereupon rose to quell the objectors. Mrs. Lee Monroe, under the name Lilladale Moore, spoke on behalf of the department of art. Her speech included some phonograph records from a coffee mill, purporting to be the poems of different members of the club. She also proposed an amendment to a bill in the legislature, prescribing the style of costume to be worn by men and women. Ida Walker (Mrs. O. L. Moore) responded to roll call in the department of education. Her speech was made up of stories as far as possible from the subject. Sally Collier (Mrs. H. W. Roby) was asked to talk on literature. The speech supposed to be impromptu, but as it was written out, rolled up and tied with a ribbon before her arrival at the dinner, it turned out to be a series of pleasant anecdotes about the election of Lincoln to the presidency. Mrs. Roby was living in Springfield at the time of the campaign and was the daughter of "one of the seven Republics of the country."

Mary Emma Milner (Mrs. Frank Montgomery) responded to a toast on "Civil Government," in which she spoke of the difficulty of preserving the neutrality of the United States by the national government, and comparing the savagery of the present conflict in Europe with the primitive inhabitants in this country, who weakened their own forces by fighting among themselves. She spoke of a field of bones dug up on an ancient battlefield in Doniphan county.

The department of domestic science was represented by Minnie Shepherd (Mrs. W. E. Atchison). Her toast was in rhyme and gave the views of the man of the house, ex-lodge member, who was driven to housekeeping when his wife joined the club. Miss Ethel Aldrich responded to a toast on "History."

Mrs. H. O. Garvey, who is in the east, sent her greeting, with the message that the first Lincoln day she had been absent from the Sororists party she took a bouquet of roses to the place where Lincoln died. The red rose is the club flower.

The guests and members of the club who sat around the tables were: Governor and Mrs. Arthur Capper, Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. W. Y. Morgan, Mr. Justice and Mrs. Rousseau A. Burch, Mr. H. O. Garvey, Miss Annabel Garvey, Prof. and Mrs. H. B. Wilson, Mrs. Albrecht Marburg, Mrs. Hulbert Yerkes of New York City, Mr. W. W. Mills, Mrs. Benjamin F. Young, Mayor and Mrs. R. L. Knabe
Mignonette Grand

This Dainty Little Grand a Social Favorite

The owner of one of these charming little Grands "points with pride" to the name on her piano—74 years old in American piano history.

The Knabe Mignonette Grand is only five feet, two inches long. It will fit in the space of the average upright—in fact, will slip into many locations that would not accommodate an upright piano at all.

The tone of this instrument is really enchanting—indeed, equal to that of the larger size Grands—while its artistic outlines leave nothing to be desired.

Knabe Baby Grands on Special Terms

This month we offer special terms on Knabe Mignonette Grand for $50 down and $20 a month.
